Politicians Present Case; Voters Make Choice

Once upon a time there was an election. It was a nice election. Some man got out some written stories and talked about them. After he talked about them he introduced someone else who talked some more.

There was somebody else with another friend. They also talked for a while. Speeches were made and promises were spoken. It was a big thing.

It was all tied in with the election. Oh, yes, the man with the most votes won. That's the way it is in an election; the one with the most votes always wins.

So . . . if you find a policy agrees with your ideas it is up to you to fully educate yourself with all you can find about the people backing that policy and then take appropriate action.

Now the ideas of who to vote for come into mind.

Adlai or not Adlai. That is the question! But, is that the only question? No, it is not. What about Ike? Ike is also to be seriously considered.

However, that is not the pending topic. This article is not to ascertain political arguments or opinions. Not on your life!

This article is to demand that all of you eligible voters make use of your right. Of course it is important who you vote for and what stand you take on certain issues. The one thing more important aside from your opinion is not just to have one but make use of it. An opinion is all-powerful. A VOTE IS ALL-MIGHTY!!!

Don't be without the first and for PETE'S SAKES don't be one of those who have a right to vote but don't. USE YOUR RIGHT TO VOTE.

Teacher Salary Increases Lag

There has been a lag in the state of New Jersey in teacher salary increases. One year ago the salary increase was $295 as compared to the average increase this year of $225.

This conclusion has been made from the annual survey of teacher salaries by the New Jersey Education Association. It also shows an estimated average salary this year of $4,880, against a figure of $4,655 for the 1955-56 school year.

The report also covers the salary guides which largely determine teacher-pay. The typical salary guide for teachers who are college graduates provides for a starting salary between $3450 and $3600. "This is at least $600 below the starting salary of college graduates in other fields and far below the $4020 generally set as the minimum for professional positions requiring college graduation under the New Jersey Civil Service," states Mr. S. Herbert Starkey, Jr., director of research for the association.

The largest average increase was in Ocean County, with a jump of over $400. Essex County, which has been generally the leader in average teacher salaries, had the second lowest rise in average salary in the State.

There are plenty of good arguments for both sides of the political fence. Sift these arguments and formulate your own.

Once you have your own ideas, opinions, and arguments set in your mind, it is up to you to take action and make use of them. Don't think about them. ACT IMMEDIATELY!!!

What's that? You say how? Here is the answer. . . .

Meyner Speaks At Press Meet

Governor Robert B. Meyner was guest speaker at the first meeting of the year of New Jersey Collegiate Press Association. The group met Saturday at the Newark College of Rutgers University.

After the business meeting was held, students from the newspaper staffs of the State's colleges and universities attended various workshops where different phases of newspaper and yearbook production were discussed with professional journalists.

Representatives from Newark State Teachers College included Loretta R. Marino '57, REFLECTOR Editor-in-chief; Maxine Feinberg '59, Associate Editor; Marilyn Lilien '59, Feature Editor; Carol June Frey '59, Kathy Zavachy '59; and Rose Marie Sinibaldi '59.

Mdm. Novotna, Czech Soprano, To Entertain at Assembly

Jarmila Novotna of the Metropolitan Opera, lovely star of stage and screen, comes to Newark State Teachers College on Thursday, November 8 to appear before the student body in the college auditorium.

Calling her platform presentation "Moments to Remember", she invites her audience to share with her sparkling reminiscences from a lifetime crowded with vivid experience, artistic achievement and fame on two continents.

Madam Novotna, a versatile Czechoslovakian soprano, made her debut at the Metropolitan Opera in 1940. With a repertoire that includes virtually all the leading soprano roles in French and Italian opera as well as some of the German operas, Madam Novotna has been acclaimed in all the major opera houses in the world. She was the toast of the Paris Opera, the Berlin State Opera, La Scala in Milan and the Vienna Opera; she sang with Toscanini and Bruno Walter in the Salzburg Festivals before coming to America.

Besides her Metropolitan Opera successes, she has scored with the San Francisco, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Chicago Opera companies here in America, and has been applauded both at the Colon in Buenos Aires and the Municipal in Rio de Janeiro. In addition, numerous concert tours have taken her all over America and Canada.

Broadway has seen her display her dramatic abilities in "Helen Goes to Troy", 1944 and "Sherlock Holmes", 1953. Recently she appeared on television in the Max Liebman spectacular, "The Great Waltz," as well as on the Ed Sullivan Show, Omnibus, Studio One and many of the top dramatic programs. Even Hollywood has savored her talent, as she played the role of the Czech mother in "The Search".

The program has been planned by the Assembly Committee under the leadership of Roberta Dowling '57, chairman and the guidance of Mrs. Mary Bartlett, technical advisor.

Science Research Gives Exams

Science Research Association will conduct the 1956 Selective Service examinations to take place Thursday, November 15, 1956 in the NSTS auditorium.

The test, a three hour examination given at a single morning session, will be conducted at several hundred examination centers throughout the United States and its territories. The score achieved on this test is one of the factors which the Local Board of Selective Service takes into consideration in deciding on the deferment of college students.

"All College" Dance Highlights Holidays

Newark State Campus will be the site of excitement and busy activity just before the Thanksgiving holidays. Plans are under way for an "All College Dance" sponsored by the Social Committee on November 16, a Friday evening, at 8:30 p.m.

All the students of Newark State and their dates are invited to support this first "all-college" social affair.

Ruth Adler '58 and Ernestine Gaiter '60 are General Chairmen of the social. The committees have been organized and have begun the necessary preparations of a dance. Any member of the Social Committee or of the student body who is interested in having a good time working on any of the various committees, may notify Ann Balogh '57, chairman of Publicity; Harriet Pierson '59, chairman of Decorations; June Butynes '60, chairman of Refreshments; and Lena Unger '60, chairman of Entertainment.

CCUN Extends Invite to 'Panorama of the Nations'

The Collegiate Council of the U.N. extends an invitation to all members of the college who would like to attend a program to be held at the Mall (72nd St.) in Central Park, Manhattan on Saturday, October 27.

The program will consist of the Panorama of the Nations with women from seventy-six U.N. member countries in beautiful costumes; a Music of the World Concert with United Nations singers; and, United Nations Speakers including Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Chairman of Board of Governors, American Association for the United Nations. In case of rain this program will be held in the auditorium of Hunter College, 69th St. and Park Avenue, Manhattan. Admission is FREE.

Juniors Sell Digest

Immediate plans for fund raising were formulated at the initial session of the Constance S. Shimko memorial Scholarship Committee.

The first in a series of projects is the sale of special subscription rates for Reader's Digest. Eight issues are being offered for $1.00 to students. Fifty cents of this money is being donated to the Scholarship Fund. The recipient of the scholarship will be a member of the class of 1958. No specific qualifications have yet been set for the candidate.

The meeting was attended by a large and willing representation of the junior class. The committee is fortunate to have the enthusiastic co-operation and approval of Dr. Whiteman and is looking forward to a most successful campaign.

IFS Includes Underclassmen

This year for the first time, underclassmen of this college will be active in the Inter-Fraternity-Sorority Council since sophomore representatives will now be attending the monthly I.F.S. meetings.

Among legislation already enacted at the first few meetings is a new ruling about pledging new members to sororities and fraternities. No more conspicuously strange costumes will be worn for hazing.

The council has voted to have the annual Winter Formal open to all students in the college, for the first time. In past years only members could attend. With the help of the Student Organization, they hope the big dance will again be a success.

VOTE AS YOU PLEASE - BUT VOTE!

Extending a Hand A(cross) - BROAD

Good public relations is an important factor in the teaching profession. Impressions that are made upon people are just as important now as they will be when you are employed. Not only does your consideration for others concern you as individuals, but it affects the general good will and relationship toward the college.

Each one of us can do much towards building up a feeling of good relationship by giving some consideration to our neighboring business establishments. Your patronage of Scotty's is greatly appreciated and welcomed by its management. They like to have you come in. We should recognize, however, an obligation to the owners and the others who patronize this establishment during the rush hour at 11:45 a.m. until 1:30 p.m.

Naturally, this is the period of time during which Scotty's does most of its business. Many of their customers are from nearby businesses and stores and have a limited time in which to have their lunch. To find it necessary to wait for a place while someone is dawdling over a cup of coffee or a glass of coke is not only exasperating, but unfair to the patron who must return to his job at a specified time.

Neither is it considerate to those at Scotty's who are trying to accommodate everyone. No one would object to the time needed by anyone to dine comfortably. BUT, it is somewhat SELFISH and THOUGHTLESS for an individual to continue to loiter when OTHERS are WAITING for a seat to be vacated.

How would YOU feel about an individual and the organization he attends if YOU had to have lunch within a limited time and could not be accommodated because someone was occupying precious space by leisurely smoking an extra cigarette or slowly nursing a cup of coffee? Of course we know that YOU WOULD NOT LIKE IT!

Perhaps, this is a good time for us to remember the lesson "DO UNTO OTHERS AS YOU WOULD HAVE THEM DO UNTO YOU".

Professor—College Style

The typical professor at Newark State Teachers College is so down to earth that I needed a shovel to find him. Digging down a few feet, I uncovered an acre of humanity.

This professor has an air about him that fills the room with warmth. He's the type who always wears a big smile -- even when he announces a surprise test. Somehow you have to smile also. The test isn't a surprise; it is a complete shock.

Everyone has the secret desire to act, and our professor is no exception to the rule. He is a shining knight in the feudal period and three months later, he is crossing the Delaware River. Sweat gleams on his brow as he crosses the treacherous waters.

His apparel is an example of what the well-dressed man should wear. I can picture the first day that I met him. There he stood in his striped suit, polka-dotted shirt, and zebra tie. His blue suede shoes sparkled because no one had stepped on them all day. I asked him if his zebra tie was made of genuine fur. Evidently I had insulted the tie because it bit me.

The typical professor eats lunch with his fellow colleagues, enjoys conversations on any subject of interest, reads the New York Times, smokes a pipe, and wears the look of a contented person.

He is a friend in need, a guide who will direct people, and a leader among men. This is the type of person who has made Newark State the wonderful and warm place that it is.

Nothing

I had to write an article today, The REFLECTOR said I should, No inspiration came my way That I thought was any good.

So I decided to write about nothing. Now "nothing" is just a little word, but it can cause a tremendous amount of trouble. I spent an afternoon in agony, mixed in with Education and Physics, trying to think of something to write about. I thought of "Life-Saving", but quickly discarded it. I then thought of my many pen-pals, but this was too broad a subject. Finally, I struck upon a bright idea! Hobbies! But horrors! I have more than five hobbies.

As I was deeply engrossed in thought, my brother came in and started to blast on his trumpet. Would musical instruments be a good subject to write on? I must have used up a ream of paper on this subject, but nothing came of it. NOTHING!! So I decided to write about nothing. I couldn't think of anything to say about nothing, so I resorted to the dictionary. It gave these definitions: "not any being or existence." This didn't help me at all. Then: "a state of non-existence." If Dad asked Junior how much he had done on his homework, Junior could say "Nothing!". For to Junior, homework did not exist (he wished). Webster also gave another meaning: "a trifle." If your girl friend were to come to the football game in a new mink coat, you could properly say "It's nothing". (And the darnest knock-'em-down fight would occur.)

So you see, although "nothing" is just a little word, it can be very interesting and come in handy for almost any excuse.

Now that my pencil's worn down to the stub,
At last my article is written,
And you ask me, "What is it all about?"
Nothing, nothing, NOTHING.

Lost Holiday

A day's vacation; a whole day in which I could be free of school, homework, and classes. At least, that's what I thought Columbus Day would be, until I reached art class and the teacher suggested that it might be a good idea to start visiting those assigned museums. Oh, well, we might as well get it out of the way. Besides that, I just love New York. We could have a "ball" there after we were through.

Who ever thought that it would take us so long to go through a museum? Did I hear someone say that we could visit three in one day? They practically locked us inside. (Well, maybe that's stretching it a bit.) How do you take notes on that painting? Crazy, no? Look at all of those artists. They must be artists; who else would walk around here with that kind of a weird beard and two-tone Bermuda socks?

Whew, we're through! My feet are killing me; I'm tired; I'm starved; and I want to go home. But I can't keep from thinking of what lies ahead. Just think, only five or six more times to go to New York to visit museums. Everybody ready, let's go! (Next time I'm not going to wear high heeled shoes.)

Reflecting

Paul Heintz

Paul Heintz is no stranger to the students and faculty of Newark State. For four years he has been an active member of his class and Student Organization. This year he is both President of the Senior Class and Vice President of the Student Organization.

An all-around student, Paul is very interested in baseball and has played as catcher for our team. As if these three time consuming activities weren't enough, Paul devotes part of his spare time to the Boys Club of Newark.

The response by the Senior class to Senior Court and the class show has made Paul feel that spirit is riding high. He is very pleased, and he is working to make the all important and busy senior year a successful one.

Kae Thompson

Miss Kae Thompson, class of '59, is an English major in the Jr. High curriculum, but more important to the sophomores, she is their class President. Kae has made a name for herself here at Newark State, not only in the executive field, but also in the field of entertainment. Last year she displayed her talents in writing, producing, and participating in the class show.

Kae's reputation for dancing is most widely known, and deservedly so. Before coming to N.S. T.C., she studied at the Connecticut School of Dance and at The Ballet Academy in New York City. Dancing was no new experience for her, for she began at about the age of four in a recreation center.

Dancing is not Kae's only forte. This gal, who is from Elizabeth and was a graduate of Battin High School in 1953, is also a professional model, writer, and painter.

Kae likes Newark State and enjoys being president of her class. However, she did say that she hopes that the class carries the spirit of last year into this. So Sophomores, look forward to a spectacular class show and an active social calendar with Kae at the helm.

We are sorry that we were unable to interview Miss Bernie Mahon for this issue, but we will interview her for a future issue.

First Daze at N.S.T.C.

I like Newark State! I like it very much, but with the sole purpose of stretching this article to feature length, I shall elaborate.

The most obvious element -- the building. It's true that Frank Lloyd Wright didn't design it, nor did the ancient Romans, as some would have you believe. You couldn't call it modern, or even contemporary. Early American wouldn't fit the bill. Early something might, perhaps early misshapen!

After a while, you become accustomed to climbing these eight flights of stairs from the basement to room 32 in three seconds flat. But it will take more than a few days to get in tip-top shape in order to fight your way through the locker room amidst shouts of "When do we have history?", "Now where did that sneaker go?", and "Thank goodness that's over!". When you are experienced in the locker room set-up, you might work up enough courage to brave another new world -- the land of muscle.

In the gym, you wonder how you will ever perfect your volley ball serve so it will clear the ceiling. They should either raise the ceiling or have a sunken gym! But it's easy to tolerate, for in the back of your mind (to settle all doubts, freshmen do have minds!) there's a sketch of five low-slung buildings on a campus. (But who can play volleyball on a sketch?!)

Enough of the building; now onto the people who dwell within it.

An inevitable part of any educational system is the faculty. Here we must be careful of what we say, for if all goes well, we might make it ourselves. Weighing words, I'll say that this faculty is a very agreeable, pleasant one. Only one fly in the ointment: assignments. Are they trying to scare us away? Or is it just the brisk autumn weather that inspires sweet thoughts of book reviews, detailed projects, term papers, plus daily assignments and tests?

Now, onto upperclassmen (you must have seen a few of them around). The upper upperclassmen look very wise and sort of superior (which, I reckon, they have a right to look) and constantly gather in the locker room and Scotty's to talk about odds and ends of life. (How is it they have time to gab? Don't they get assignments?) Sophomores are easily identified by a few la la lala's in the halls and a smear of red chalk dust on the chin.

Now comes the time to look at all fellow freshmen. Things that have happened to us shouldn't happen to the proverbial dog.

We walked stealthily toward the door. Easing it open, we took a furtive glance at the hall. We were safe. The hall seemed as dark and quiet as a tomb. Gathering together the remnants of the courage we had left, we crept downstairs to the locker room. We turned the corner and there they were. Our knees buckled; we stood there shaking as the dread terror confronted us. Our minds were a jumble as we tried to decide whether to run or hide. Too late -- we'd been spotted.

"Hello freshmen. Now wouldn't you just love to sing for us today? We'll start with the Alma Mater and then, since it's Jack's birthday, we'll sing Happy Birthday to him. Later on, if you're good, we might even play a few games in the garden."

Sounds familiar, doesn't it, fellow freshmen? Our sophomore friends devoted so much of their time to lowly freshmen just to prove their affection. If we didn't have time to finish playing "Farmer-in-the-Dell" (one of our favorites) by the end of one period, they were kind enough to let us come back and play later in the day.

Everyone was SO kind to us. When we got tired of waiting for our daily bread, some considerate upperclassman at the head of the cafeteria line always gave up his place to us. The book store was another place where the rule, "Freshmen First," was always observed. Such true fraternity!

At the traditional Sophomore-Freshman party the upperclassmen clearly demonstrated their love for their little brothers and sisters by giving up the best seats in the house (although some were rather hot!). And the penalties which the Senic Court handed out benefitted us so as individual Boys interested in fashion were allowed to displace some of the latest Dior creations. What more fitting sentence for a Health Ed. student than to be able to brush the steps of the college with a toothbrush and chlorophyll toothpaste. Girls interested in civ defense were even given the benefit of a free training course right on campus. What a terrific college!!

These are the humble reflections of a freshman at Newark State. After thinking things over, I only say that I am proud and thankful to be included as one of its students. For, after recovering from the daze of the first few days here, Newark State and its illustrious freshmen are the best anywhere.

NJ State Teachers' Colleges Send Representatives to Newark

Each of the six state teachers colleges was represented at the bi-annual meeting of the New Jersey State Teachers College Alumni Association's executive committee, which was held in the Tudor Room on Sunday, October 14.

Discussed briefly were the pros and cons of life membership in the association and the possibility of discontinuing the alumni booth at Atlantic City because of the high commercial rates which are charged.

Suggestions of methods of keeping address files up to date were exchanged by the members.

The president of the Glassboro association posed a question, "What can the alumni do to help accelerate the college recruitment program?" It was decided that personal contact with parents

Shirley Joins Boys In Soph Gym Class

Exhibiting a true scientific attitude toward an experiment in which she attempted to show "What causes body heat?", junior Shirley Miller decided at the suggestion of Mr. Richardson (instructor of her course in "Teaching Science in the Elementary Schools") to "work out" in the gym and observe the results.

Unfortunately, or so it seemed at first, the ½ hour which Shirley had decided to dedicate to this problem, a sophomore boys' Physical Education class was being conducted by Mr. Zweidinger in the gym. However, for the sake of science and research Shirley was invited to join the boys. Helen Dillon, also a junior, tagged along as official temperature taker.

After 31 minutes of doing push-ups, deep knee bends and drill practice, Helen observed the following results: 8:30-temperature 96.6° F., 9:01 98.6° F.

Surprisingly Mr. Richardson, though accepting the experiment, challenged its validity (!?) . . . He suggested too that Helen try taking the boys' temperatures.

NSTC 'Ideas Club' Meets; Dr. Thomason Speaks

"Ideas Club," a one year old organization in the school, was established with the purpose of providing for interested students the opportunity for broadening their knowledge.

The group, whose coordinator is Mr. Richard C. Fink, holds a monthly get-together, quite informal, at which some person, faculty or visitor speaks on matters of importance to himself. So far this fall, the group has had one meeting at which Dr. Thomason spoke on Translation. He read poems and other selections which he had translated from Japanese, Chinese, and German.

Any student who is interested in hearing the thoughts and experiences of men and women with various professional training and knowledge is welcome to attend these meetings.

Junior Class Plans Prom; Begin Script for Show

Prom and Show plans are dominating the thoughts and activities of the Junior Class members making their way, in this, their next to last year, under the able leadership of President, Bernadette Mahon.

A Show Script committee meeting was held today at 2 P.M. The Dance will be held either the last week of April or the beginning of May. Peter Gualtieri and his committee are investigating a possible place to hold the dance.

Delta Rho Hosts At Recruitment Tea

As part of the recruitment program of Newark State, a tea was given on October 22 in the Kane Library of the new campus for high school F.T.A. representatives and their counselors. Approximately one hundred twenty people from sixty schools attended. The program was from 2:00 to 4:30 p.m. and included a tour of the new campus, a discussion period, entertainment by the Hi-Lows, and refreshments. Kappa Delta Pi members acted as hostesses at this affair.

This tea was part of a series of three teas being given to further recruitment. The other two were given by the college Social Committee on October 18 and 19 for the college advisors and guidance people in the high schools of this area. Dr. Wilkins explained the new curricula and new majors; a question and answer period followed. The Hi-Lows sang at these teas also. The reason for having three teas instead of one is to provide small groups for discussion purposes and an informal atmosphere.

ACE-FTA Vote; Choose Bernstein

The executive body of the ACE-FTA was elected at the first official meeting held in the Tudor Room on October 15. The President of this professional group of the college is Mimi Bernstein; Vice President, Patricia Garreth; Irene Brown, Recording Secretary; Phyllis Rheubottom, Corresponding Secretary, and Maxine Feinberg, Treasurer.

All the members of the ACE-FTA that signed the notice posted on the college bulletin board will attend a Hallowe'en Social Party on October 31, in the Tudor Room. At this time, in relation to the traditional "TRICK OR TREAT" festivity day, cider and doughnuts will be served to those attending this informal get-together.

The party was planned by the new officers of the association in hope that it will be the beginning of a very successful and worthwhile activity program for the ACE-FTA.

Newest and most treasured possession of the REFLECTOR Staff is a Polaroid camera. The camera develops the photographs within three minutes after the shutter has been snapped. One more step in an attempt to get on the scene reporting of the Newark Staters.

Freshman Spots False Claim

It took a freshman, Fran Natale, to open the REFLECTOR's eyes to the fact that we have been "laboring under a misapprehension."

The masthead on the second page of the paper has claimed that this is a bi-weekly publication. Bi-weekly we have discovered does not mean every two weeks but twice a week. Apologies are in order. Henceforth we shall be known correctly as a bi-monthly publication.

Optimistically speaking, however, taking into consideration the growing enrollment and the fact that we are soon moving out of these quarters on Broadway and Fourth maybe we will one day be again known (this time justifiably so) as a bi-weekly paper.

Cerasa, Gross, Collins Direct Tennessee William's Play

Time is getting close for the presentation of Norms' production of "Summer and Smoke," by Tennessee Williams. Afternoon rehearsals are held each day in the auditorium under the student direction of Jimmy Cerasa, Elaine Goss, and Joan Collins.

The female lead of the play, Alma Winemiller is portrayed by Marilyn Thompson, a member of the sophomore class. Marilyn came to Newark State from Our Lady of Good Counsel High where she actively participated in dramatic monologue contests.

New to the college this year is Carl Kumpf, a graduate of Barringer High School. Carl, who is 5' 10½" with blue eyes and brown hair, was an active participant in his high school productions. He was Professor Michaels in "Mother Is a Freshman" and Mr. Gillbreth in "Cheaper By The Dozen."

House Committee Issues Rules Governing Posting of Notices

Have you ever missed an important meeting because the notice to announce it was posted in the wrong place?

Have you ever tried to post a notice, but couldn't because the bulletin board was all cluttered with things that shouldn't have been there? And perhaps many of them were outdated?

Did you know that there are rules governing the posting of notices and posters? Well, there are. And maybe we need to review them.

First of all, these rules are presented by the House Committee to keep our building looking its very best. But, notices hurriedly written on pages torn from notebooks, posters placed all over the walls, and too many notices or posters on the bulletin boards do not help to keep up a good appearance. Therefore it is the job for each of us to follow these rules.

Notices:

1. All notices for activities shall be written on 4" x 6" or 3" x 5" cards which can be obtained from Miss Coffenberg in the Student Personnel Office. When space is needed for students to sign for activities, white paper 8½" x 11" is also available.
2. Notices of meetings may be placed on the bulletin boards no more than one week in advance and should be removed immediately following the meeting. All notices should be dated.
3. Notices shall be placed only under the appropriate headings, which are: First floor: Counseling, sororities and fraternities, faculty-administration (notices to students) student organization, clubs, classes, telephone calls, and military service.
- Second floor: Travel, A.C.E. - F.T.A., religious organizations, and graduate work.
- Ground floor: Sports, lost and found, and personal.

Posters:

1. No posters (anything other than the 4 x 6 or 3 x 5 cards) may be placed on the bulletin boards.
2. Posters may be placed only in the following places:
 - a) The basement hall
 - b) the locker rooms
 - c) the Tudor Room
 - d) the stair wells (on glass and wood only - not on walls)
 - e) the lower molding of the second floor bulletin board.
3. Posters for special events may be placed on the walls with the permission of the House Committee. When permission is granted, only masking tape may be used for securing the posters. Under no condition may scotch tape be used.
4. Posters may be displayed no more than three weeks in advance of the event and should be removed immediately thereafter. These posters may be no larger than 18" x 24".

Improperly placed notices and posters will be removed.

Now we can each do a part to keep our bulletin boards uniform and attractive. Will you?

Joe DeFillippo

Art Russomano

Meet the Team

Joe DeFillippo

A sophomore this year, Joe DeFillippo played excellent ball last year on the freshman team. This year he should prove to be a valuable man on the varsity.

Joe graduated from Barringer High and then joined the Marine Corps. He served for three years overseas. He saw quite a lot of the world while a Marine.

Joe thinks that the team should have a better than .500 average. He believes that with the fine playing of Art Russomano, Bob Giacobbe, Gene Campbell and Hank Kobik, the Black Knights should have a very good season.

Hank Kobik

The captain of this year's squad, Hank Kobik, has been on the team for three years. Hank is also very optimistic about the team. Even though they have a rough schedule, he believes that through efficient teamwork, the Black Knights should be able to have a better season than last year. He says, "With Joe Simmons blocking me, I should be able to follow up for a few baskets."

Hank, who is an I. A. major, is quite a busy person around the school. He is president of the following organizations; Nu Sigma Phi, Industrial Art Men's Guild, and the Inter-Fraternity-Sorority Council. He is also a very active member of the Norms Theater Guild, putting in many strenuous hours making the scenery and the props, a fine job for which he puts in much time but gets very little recognition. He is also kept quite busy coaching basketball at the C.Y.O., a job which he enjoys very much.

Alumni Sponsor Shore Tea

The annual alumni tea will be held at the Renaissance Room of the Ambassador Hotel in Atlantic City on Friday, November 9, from 4 to 6 p.m.

This tea, the longest affair of the year, is jointly sponsored by the college and alumni in conjunction with the NJEA convention.

Alumni members will be admitted free of charge and there will be a slight fee for guests. All are cordially invited to attend.

Does NSTC Want A Football Team?

by Nick Polimeni '60

Thousands of questions have been asked concerning this topic since the commencement of school. The Pro's and Con's have been discussed, reasoned and argued. The Freshman Class has been pushing the point this year. Last year it was the present day Sophomores. This column would like to add to the controversy by submitting a collection of pro's and con's.

On the con's: a football team needs man-power to play and we haven't enough! A football team needs to be uniformed; a football field must be graded, bleachers must be bought. In order to do this, money will be needed. Money we haven't got! An adequate coaching staff must be provided. Facilities such as locker rooms and showers are necessities. A doctor or at least a trainer must be on hand for all the games. Even if we had the man-power this year and next, there is no guarantee that we will continue having the manpower. Therefore, no football!

On the pro's: a football team would aid in increasing school spirit. At an informal interview, thirty-seven young men, mainly freshmen and sophomores, pledged their support to play if and when there is a football team at Newark State Teachers College. Other State Teachers Colleges maintain football teams; we should at least attempt it. We are moving to a new campus; a football team and college campus are synonymous -- according to reliable sources. The residents of Union would be certain to give us support.

To look at these various points of view, one would say that the issue under discussion offers excellent opinions both for the affirmative and the negative.

Now for the answer to our question, and a bit of advice to our football enthusiasts and our football antagonists. Keep in mind that our school has an executive committee, athletic committee, and a student council. Any issue that involves the entire school cannot be put into effect if it favors a minority. Therefore, the first point is to see if it favors the minority or the majority. This can only be done by classroom vote. Before any voting can be taken though, all pros and cons must be dropped. The issue isn't whether we have sufficient funds, or if we have enough players, or proper facilities, or an adequate coaching staff, nor is it an issue of another State Teachers College having a football team, or the willingness of thirty-seven students to play the game or even the supposed support of residents of a city. The issue is, "Does Newark State Teachers College want a football team and will the students, male and female fully support it?"

When the time for voting arrives, please students, use a little foresight! The enrollment at our school is increasing. There will be more men coming in than ever before. Would the future students of Newark State Teachers College want a football team? Will we be helping the future student or are we going to let tradition stand in the way or progress? It's your vote; yes, the vote of each and every student.

ty-fourth. The Tournament games will be bowled at Bowl-A-Rena on Fourth Avenue, directly across from the school.

Each member of the winning team will be presented with a medal at the annual athletic banquet.

Bowling News

Newark State, again this year, sponsored a bowling Tournament open to both men and women. The Tournament is being held on Friday afternoons from four to five p.m., starting October twen-

Into High Gear

The basketball team has moved out of the conditioning stage and is settling down to some fundamental work. This shifting from low to high gear takes some time; it cannot be done too rapidly or the true momentum will be lost. On the other hand, if the shifting takes too long the momentum is not built up to the desired velocity until it is too late; usually about halfway through the regular season. The problem of how to regulate the length and intensity of early season drills is of prime importance to a club and often the success or failure of an entire season.

Let's take a closer look. Basketball is an unusual game. In practically no other sport does a player run as hard for so long as he does in an ordinary basketball game. Add to this the fact that it is played indoors where the percentage of pure oxygen is cut to a bare minimum. These and several other minor factors all contribute to the end result. That result is a game where a player can go "stale" quicker than in any other.

Al Cohn is perfectly aware of this and has been putting the boys through their paces wisely. At the first sign of staleness on the part of a player or the team in general, he slows down the tempo until things get back to normal.

The Style of Play

With a decided lack of height on the team, Al Cohn has been working primarily with the fast break. This style of play should prove to be just the thing in our particular situation. It is possible to have an average or small sized team and still not have the necessary speed to operate the fast break offense. This fortunately is not the case with NSTC. Although we are handicapped by the lack of height, there is plenty of speed on the club. The situation may develop, however, where this speed could be a disadvantage.

If the fast break is used as the standard offense, the tendency could easily develop where the team begins to "run ahead" of the play or "force" the offense. This means that shots are taken or plays fumbled because the team is attempting to move against a defense at too rapid a speed. They are seeing scoring opportunities where none really exist. Of course this also results in sloppy defense because a team becomes overconscious to score rapidly. If you follow pro basketball at all, you can recognize this very thing happening with the scoring Boston Celtics. They frequently score over one hundred points a game but still lose.

Don't think that you are being let in on any inside or secret information. This will probably be our style of play but it is not to any team's advantage to know it.

Baseball in October?

Yes, baseball in October, and we do not mean the World Series. Gus Jamnaione held the first in his series of fall and winter baseball meetings which are designed to get the fellows on next year's team acquainted with the coach and with each other. Other functions of these meetings are to put together a suitable practice schedule, arrange for practice and game sites, and cover fundamental points of the game which will not have to take up too much of our time during the spring.

The turnout for the first meeting was excellent. There were at least eight or ten freshmen there as well as most of last year's lettermen. This fact plus the exceptional interest shown by the boys, put a gleam in Gus's eye and a note of optimism in his speech. "At last," he said, "this looks like the kind of group that really wants to know how to play baseball." At last is right, Gus!
